But Tora offers a key feature ofÃ .1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a speed control system for a motor vehicle. 2. Description of the Background Art As a typical speed control system for a motor vehicle, a cruise control system is known which shifts to a speed control mode when a vehicle speed becomes equal to or lower than a preset speed and maintains the vehicle speed at the preset speed. In this known control system, since the vehicle speed is controlled to be always at the preset speed, when a decrease in vehicle speed is caused due to, for example, a vehicle speed (referred to as a vehicle speed corresponding to a constant-vehicle-speed-corresponding-operation) which is required for operating a vehicle speed control mode (hereinafter simply referred to as a speed corresponding to a constant-vehicle-speed-corresponding-operation), the control time may be changed. In order to overcome such a disadvantage, a system disclosed in Japanese Patent Laid-Open No. Hei 6-306630 has been proposed in which a vehicle speed is set to a vehicle speed corresponding to a constant-vehicle-speed-corresponding-operation which is required for releasing the speed control mode, and thereafter the system effects the speed control. However, since the vehicle speed is set to the speed corresponding to the constant-vehicle-speed-corresponding-operation in the above-mentioned prior art control system, the operation of the vehicle speed control mode does not depend on a vehicle speed or an operation condition of a driver. For this reason, the vehicle speed is generally controlled to be always at the preset speed, and hence, when the vehicle speed (which is required for operating the vehicle speed control mode) is decreased due to, for example, a vehicle speed (referred to as a vehicle speed corresponding to an operation for a speed control) which is required for operating a vehicle
